DUL BIOGRAPHIES

(died before the 4th session). OTHER PROVINCIAL OFFICES: collector of North Potomac, May 1718-January 1718/19; commissary general, 1721 (commissioned jointly with William Holland and Thomas Addison), 1722-1724 (commissioned jointly with William Holland, Thomas Addison, and Thomas Brooke), 1734-1753; attorney general, 1721-1725, 1734-1744; judge, Court of Vice-Admiralty, appointed 1733; agent and receiver general, 1733-1734; Council, 1742-1753 (qualified on September 25, 1742). LOCAL OFFICES: clerk of Indictments, Charles County, appointed 1710; common councilman, Annapolis, elected 1721; St. Anne's Parish Vestry, Anne Arundel County, 1721-1724, 1735 (elected, but did not serve). STANDS ON PUBLIC/PRIVATE ISSUES: In the early years of his public career he was the leader of the country party, espousing the people's cause in the controversy over English statutes affecting the American colonies. In 1728 he published The Right of the Inhabitants of Maryland to the Benefit of the English Laws In 1732 he concluded that the people were entitled to all the benefits of English statutes. Eventually, however, he left the country party to take a place in the proprietary establishment, WEALTH DURING LIFETIME, ANNUAL IN-COME: in the 1750s the annual net profit from his investment in the Baltimore Ironworks Company was £400 sterling, LAND AT FIRST ELECTION: ca. 15,340 areas in surveyed tracts and 19,000 acres in warrants in Baltimore, Anne Arundel, Kent, Prince George's, and possibly Calvert counties (all by personal acquisition). By 1720 he converted 6,000 acres of his Baltimore County and Eastern Shore properties into leaseholds, forming a partnership with John Bradford (?-1725/26) for locating and surveying unclaimed lands. SIGNIFICANT CHANGES IN LAND BETWEEN FIRST ELECTION AND DEATH: acquired ca. 37,120 acres in Frederick County between 1724 and 1746. He divided 5,000 acres of this land into tracts ranging from 100 to 300 acres, which he then sold for less than they had cost him in order to encourage settlement. After 1739 he actively engaged in selling tracts in the Monocacy and Antietam valleys in Frederick County to German, Scottish, and Welsh immigrants. He sold 1,800 acres, of which more than 600 acres were near his old residence in Prince George's County, in the mid-1720s; he seemed disposed at this time to sell his property in the more settled parts of Prince George's County as he increased his acquisitions to the west and north. In 1745 he surveyed 340 lots, which he named Frederick Town. He leased some lots of land for 1 shilling a year for the first 21 years, and 2 shillings annually thereafter, payable to himself and his heirs in perpetuity. Other lots in the town were sold in fee simple for £4 to £5 for each half acre. WEALTH AT DEATH. DIED: on December 5. 1753: buried next to his second wife Rebecca at St. Anne's Church Cemetery in Annapolis. PERSONAL PROPERTY: TEV, at least £10,921.9.8 current money (including 187 slaves, 98 books, 2,594 oz. plate, and more than 563 gallons of wine). This does not include one of his largest assets, money out on loan. LAND: ca. 10,000 acres in Kent. Baltimore, Anne Arundel, Frederick, and Oueen Anne's counties were divided among his heirs. He also controlled 1,585 acres in Anne Arundel County, which went to his stepchildren, the heirs of Samuel Chew.
